Col. Baziersly, not having seen his sister in ten years, decided to spend Christrans at her house. A desultory correspondence had made him vaguely aw are of the fact that her husband, Cal-'An Murdock, had grown rich, and that she had two children, a boy and a girl. But he was not prepared for the luxuriant conditions which he found upon ensering their splendid home. He was never estranged from his sister, but when she married Murdock the soldier brother had made up his mind that his sister's husband was not "his kind." In frontier barracks and foreign camps, Col. Battersly's life had been lonely. He was a silent, elemental, passionate man, whose rigid habits gave a cold and even hard exterior to a nature essential-

But the Murdocks gave Uncle Batterely a grand welcome. His sister kissed him, the two children gave him their hands with trained graciousness, and the head of the house said: "Welcome to the warrior-see, the conquering hero comes!" This made the old campaigner ill at ease. Ife blushed like a girl, and thereafter found restraint in the, to him, artificial atmosphere of the grand

When the Christmas presents began to arrive, and his sister showed them to him, the colonel suddenly realized that he must buy something for the children. He said nothing about it, but spent half of the next day buying for his niece a French doll, with a complete wardrobe, and a fully equipped steam battleship for his nephew. It was a soldier's choice-love and a child for the little woman, power and war for the little man. "He was very careful about the address, "Mrs. Murdock, 2441 Penrose street."

He wondered why his gifts did not soon appear in the grand array, but said authing to his sister, showing each day an increasing interest in the accumulating presents in the locked room, and finally, on Christmas eve, late in the day, going back to the store where he had made his purchases to ask what had become of the doll and the warship. It took a long time to find out the right man, but at last a very polite clark who had been answering questions as fast as a dozen people could ask them, turned to him and said:

"Murdock? What address? Penrose street or Penrose avenue?'

"Are there both?" asked the colonel, as the possible blunder dawned on him. "Yes; one on the West side, one on the South side. Where did you wish your goods to go?"

Of course, Penrose avenue is on the South side and Penrose street is on the West side, and Col. Battersly had himself made the mistake. The goods had tell 'em it's all right."—Chicago Record. been receipted for, the clerk told bim. Herald.

GEOGRAPHICAL TAFFY.

ere Distinction of the Town Was Not in Line with the Expectations of the People.

"What town is this?" asked the eminent statesman, who, relates the Chicago Tri-bune, was making a political tour of the provinces, "lonia," they told him,

"Ionia," they told him.

The eminent statesman stepped out to the rear platform of the gorgeous private car in which he was traveling.

"My countrymen," he said, impressively, to the cheering throng at the station, "your beautiful and thriving young city has a rare distinction. Independently of its commerce and manufactures, independently of its charming location, independently, I may add, of the stalwart men and fair women who inhabit it, so many of whom I see before me—not forgetting these bright and winsome young children who are also here, the hope and mainstay of the republic—independently, I say, of all these, your lovely city—"

Here he became truly eloquent. His eyes flashed, his voice rang out in clarion tones, and he shook his elenched fist at the zenith.

The applause, as the train moved away, was simply deafening.

AN EXPERT.

He Wanted a Confidential Clerkship Because He Could Be Very Confidential.

Secretary Shaw says that shortly after he assumed his duties as head of the treasury department he was called upon by an old gentleman from his own state of Iowa, who wanted an appointment as confidential clerk to one of the assistant secretaries of that department.

wanted an appointment as confidential clerk to one of the assistant secretaries of that department.

"In spite of the fact that I was very busy at the time," says Mr. Shaw, "I gave the Iowan the better part of an hour, for he was as pleasant and entertaining an old chap as one could meet—bright, chipper and witty."

On account of his age, the secretary felt that he could not comply with the request, So, gently but firmly, he informed him that he did not see his way clear to give him the appointment. This did not dampen the old gentleman's spirit in the least.

"Now, sir," said he, "as I feel myself peculiarly well qualified to fill one of these confidential clerkships, I hope that you will consider my application further."

Then, wagging his head most impressively, he added earnestly:

"Oh, sir, I could be so confidential!"

Somewhat Twisted.

The average American in the Philippines makes sorry work of the Spanish language; but the Spaniards also have difficulty in mastering English. A Detroit woman opened a Manila paper the other day, and saw the following advertisement of a prominent Spanish dry goods house that caters to American trade:

"Importing house receiving by all mails from Europe. The highest novelties in weavings of silks and linen. Hats, and all sorts of Adorning for ladies and children. A complete assortment of all kinds of goods for gentlemen."—Detroit Free Press.

One of Representative Bartholdt's constituents came to Washington and stopped at a local hotel.

"Don't Blow Out the Gas" was the first sign he read on entering his room, and he didn't. It burned all night. When he paid his bill the next morning he found this item:

"I tried all the medicine I could hear of and several doctors without help, not even for a moment. I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and they made a new man out of me. I felt as if there was new blood in my veins. I am as stout in the back as a mule and can lift and work as hard as I please without an ache or pain in any part of my body.

"It is now over a year since they cured me and I can say there is not a healthier man in Wyoming than I am, and before using Dodd's Kidney Pills there was not a more complete physical wreck in the whole country than I was."

Croup, capillary bronchitis and articular rheumatism are the special banes of childhood. There all alike result from catching cold.

One child catches cold and scares its mother into hysterics by having croup in the dead of night. Another child catches cold, develops a stubborn cough that will not yield to ordinary remedies. The parents are filled with forebodings. Still another child catches cold and develops that most fatal malady of child-hood, capillary bronchitis. The doctor is called, pronounces the case pneumonia and, if the child is lucky enough to live, it has developed weak lungs from
